

Veterinary Clinical Pathologist based at Finn Pathologists, Norfolk

Would you like to be part of a growing, successful veterinary diagnostic laboratory group in the United Kingdom.

We are looking for clinical pathologists to join our team. Our Laboratory is based in Harleston, Norfolk. Full & part time applications will be considered but the ideal candidate will be based on-site at the lab.

Primary duties & responsibilities include:

- Microscopic analysis and reporting on all clinical pathology submissions from a variety of species to include cytology, fluid analysis, urinalysis and pathology haematology reviews, following the standard recommended reporting protocol. Providing an excellent clinical pathology service to our clients which include first opinion and referral practices from the UK and worldwide.
- Involvement in the interpretation & validation of all submissions to support the internal medicine team and as required by the laboratory when time and workloads allow.
- Consulting on phone calls from clients relating to a previous, current and future submissions as well as general clinical pathology questions as required.
- Participation in rounds and other internal training sessions. On a rota basis, provide support and case review to the resident clinical pathologists.

The ideal candidate will be residency trained with board certification, however applicants with other post graduate qualifications or suitable experience would also be considered. Applicants need to be current members of the Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons, see www.rcvs.org.uk/registration; or be willing to become members.

Salary is competitive and is based upon qualifications and experience. The package includes good holiday and CPD benefits.
